

Washington University's Department of Orthopaedic Surgery, Hand and Microsurgery Division is seeking a full-time clinical faculty member to join our high-volume practice in St. Louis, MO. This role maximizes the benefits of an academic medical center, including:

- Developing a full-time hand/microsurgery academic clinical practice.
- Active participation in orthopedic resident and fellow education, conferences and journal clubs.
- Conducting clinical, basic-science, translational and/or biomechanics research.

All applicants must have completed an orthopedic surgery residency and hand fellowship, or be in the process of completing fellowship. Must be board certified or board eligible and be eligible to obtain a permanent MO medical license.

Our vision is to grow our impact on orthopedics by improving access and outcomes, training the next generation of orthopedic leaders, and transforming the future of care through discovery and innovation. JOIN US!
